Which gazebo for which weather?

For protection from the sun

All high quality gazebos at House of Tents have a high UV resistance - ideal for hot summer days. If UV protection 30+ is enough for you, then we recommend either our PE marquees, our garden gazebos in the Premium and Deluxe lines, or our Economy steel and Economy aluminium pop up gazebos. All these gazebo tents offer great UV protection of SPF 50+. For the ultimate in sun protection all of our high quality PVC (Profi-line) marquees, as well as the Premium steel and Professional aluminium pop up gazebos offer UV protection of SPF 80+.

For protection from the rain and snow

All gazebos at House of Tents are 100% waterproof. But especially in winter, a season with a lot of wind and heavy rain, the gazebo frame makes all the difference. For example, heavy duty gazebos are more weatherproof than wooden frames. Wooden gazebos are also waterproof, but over time, the wood can rot and splinter. Steel gazebos on the other hand, are very weather-resistant while aluminium gazebos provide the best protection from rust.

For garden gazebos that will be standing in one place over winter, we advise choosing a model with a hardtop, as the heavy duty polycarbonate panels can stand up to the worst weather conditions. Depending on the model, they can even withstand snow loads of 50 to 80 kg/m².

Waterproof marquees

Celebrate great parties in the garden regardless of the weather - great quality outdoor canopies allow you to throw parties with less stress. Celebrate birthdays, weddings or host events in your garden. All marquees from House of Tents are 100% waterproof and if you choose a PVC garden tent, you will also be able to enjoy shelter deep into the autumn. To ensure that your product also stands up to strong winds, you will find accessories to increase its stability in our shop. Equip your marquee with a base frame, for example. Thanks to the groundbar frame, the legs of your marquee cannot slip in strong winds, giving it more support. Ground anchors for your patio or garden are also advisable.

Tip: A storm has been announced or even snow? Read our magazine article on how to secure your garden tent against rain, snow and wind. This magazine article also presents and compares the various accessories - weights or anchors for soft and hard grounds including concrete, as well as tie down kits.
